

Transforming Lives Through Literacy

Marcie Craig Post

Executive Director

Marcie Craig Post, executive director of the International Literacy Association (ILA) since 2012, has more than 20 years of experience in leadership and management in education.

Prior to joining ILA, Post served as chief program and education officer for Global Partnership Schools and Global Education Management Systems and, during her tenure, directed and managed the design and development of curriculum for international schools. In addition, she served for 10 years as the chief executive officer of Education Enterprises of New York (now Education Success Network), overseeing the operation of five affiliated education nonprofit organizations and serving for 10 years as executive director of the Norman Howard School in Upstate New York.

Post's leadership of ILA focuses on identifying and monitoring education and literacy issues from around the world and positioning ILA to be a central resource for information and force for change.

